The Danish nature restoration programme including wetlands started in 1989. In 1993 the Minister of the Environment issued a national directive designating all low-lying areas (former wetlands) which potentially could be restored. The directive safeguards that these areas should not become subject to any land use which may hinder or impede restoration of wetlands. In the years 2002, 2003 and 2004 the Danish Forest and Nature Agency and the regional county councils have in cooperation with other authorities and stakeholders completed 3 wetland restoration projects, altogether about 2,550 hectares. The largest project completed is the restoration of 2,200 hectares of wetland in the River Skjern Delta (part of and adjacent to Ramsar site no. 152). Several projects are still in the process of planning and restoration. By December 2004, altogether about 12,550 hectares have been rehabilitated as wetlands.

In 1987 an Action Plan for the improvement of the aquatic environment was adopted by the Danish Parliament (the plan has been revised in 1998, 2001 and 2004). Until now the full ecological results of these investments have not been totally obtained. The objective was to reduce the total amount of nitrogen and phosphorous discharge into the environment by 50 per cent and 80 per cent respectively by 1993. By the end of 1992 a significant reduction of the discharge of phosphorous from urban and industrial areas has been achieved. There are still serious problems, especially concerning the emissions of nitrogen from farmland. The revised action plan ("The Action Plan for the Aquatic Environment II") from 1998 has as the main objective to reduce the emissions of nitrogen from farmland to the aquatic environment with further 37,000 tonnes N/year. The plan describes several ways to reduce the eutrophication load. One way to reduce the emission of nitrogen is by reestablishing former wetlands. According to the revised plan from 2001 the aim is to restore further 8,000-12,500 hectares of wetlands before 2003. The subsequent anticipated reduction is estimated to 3,600 tonnes N/year. In order to implement this restoration programme it is expected to have 500 mio DKr. available on the budget. By December 2004, altogether 2,800 hectares of wetland have been established in 43 areas, and several projects are still in the process of being established. The implementation of the plan will continue from 2005-2007. In addition a further 2,500 hectares is set as the target under the new Action Plan for the Aquatic Environment III.

Action r4.1.i.- Report on progress in implementation of Actions 4.1.1 and 4.1.2 in triennial National Reports to the COP (Resolution VIII.16).

COP9 REPORT SECTION

Action 10.1.1.- Renew efforts to apply the Strategic Framework and guidelines for the future development of the Ramsar List (Resolution VII.11) including, as a matter of priority the establishment of a strategy and priorities for the further designation of Ramsar sites so as to achieve, as soon as possible, the coherent national networks called for in the Vision for the List. (Resolution VIII.10).

GLOBAL TARGET 2003-2005: Report on implementation progress to the Ramsar Bureau by 31 December 2003, with consolidated Bureau report circulated to all Parties by 31 March 2004. Each CP which has not designated a Ramsar site since accession to the Convention to have designated at least one new site. Designation of a further 55 million ha and 250 Ramsar sites, as progress towards global targets of 2500 sites and 250 million ha by 2010.

1. A strategy and priorities have been established for further designation of Ramsar sites, in application of the Strategic Framework for the Ramsar List	C	Choose an answer A = Not applicable; B = Yes; C = No; D = Partly/ in some cases; E = In progress; F= Being planned; G = Being updated; H = Other status (explain below); I = No answer

Priority has been given to designation of the internationally important bird areas as Special Protection Areas (SPAs) under the EEC Wild Birds Directive. In this way all Ramsar sites have been designated as SPAs and in addition about 3 times as many areas have been designated as SPAs (total number = 113) covering much of the same interests as the Ramsar sites. Since COP8 two large marine areas have been designated as SPAs and further two marine SPAs have been significantly enlarged. However,, more Ramsar sites have not been designated.

Action r10.1.i.- Identify all wetlands which potentially qualify for designation as Ramsar sites, as a concrete output of the strategy and priorities called for in Action 10.1.1, establish targets for future designation in terms of number of sites to be designated, and communicate these targets to each meeting of the Conference of the Parties and to the Ramsar Bureau. (Resolution VIII.10)

COP9 REPORT SECTION

Action 11.1.1.- Consistent with Article 3.1 of the Convention, define and apply the measures required to maintain the ecological character of each listed site, using as the basis for this the official definitions of “ecological character” and “change in ecological character” adopted by Resolution VII.10 and the integrated package of Convention tools for site management as presented in Ramsar Handbook 8 as well as the supplementary guidance adopted by COP8, and ensure that this information is included in the Information Sheet on Ramsar Wetlands.

Objectives for the water quality of all Danish wetlands, including the Ramsar sites, are part of the regional planning, and changes in ecological character are currently being monitored. Criteria for favourable conservation status have been defined according to the Habitats Directive, including wetland habitats and species. These criteria will be applied when elaborating management plans for all Natura 2000 sites, including all Danish Ramsar sites, by 2009.

Action 11.1.2.- Apply the Convention’s New Guidelines for management planning for Ramsar sites and other wetlands (Resolution VIII.14) to develop management plans or strategies for all Ramsar sites.

Ramsar site no. 152 Ringkøbing Fjord is on the Montreux Record. The site is currently being monitored, among others to measure the ecological impact of the changed management of the sluice in order to increase the salinity of the fjord. During the last year (2004) the ecological character of the fjord has improved, among other things due to the accomplishment of the restoration of the River Skjern Delta, but the waterbird populations have not yet recovered.

Action r11.2.vi.- Utilize all appropriate mechanisms to address and resolve as soon as practicable the matters for which a site may have been the subject of a report pursuant to Article 3.2; and once those matters have been resolved, submit a further report, so that both positive influences at sites and changes in ecological character may be fully reflected in reporting under Article 3.2 and in the reporting to all meetings of the COP in order to establish a clear picture of the status and trends of the Ramsar site network at three-year intervals (Resolution VIII.8)

According to the Ramsar Advisory Mission in 1996 all recommendations have not yet been fulfilled. The ecological character of the Ringkøbing Fjord (Ramsar site no. 152) has not been fully restored, but there are indications of a positive trend in the submerge vegetation, e.g. ell-grass beds. However, it is not known if the positive changes will continue and result in a rehabilitation to a favourable conservation status for the wetland habitats as such including recovering of the bird populations. Therefore, the site should not yet be removed from the Montreux Record.

(Based on Section E1 of the Guidelines).

GLOBAL TARGET 2003-2005: Each CP with a bilateral donor agency to have encouraged it to give priority for funding for wetland conservation and wise use projects in relation to poverty alleviation and other WSSD targets and priorities.

1. (For CPs with development assistance agencies) Funding support has been mobilized from development assistance agency for wetland issues	B	Choose an answer for each indicator A = Not applicable; B = Yes; C = No; D = Partly/ in some cases; E = In progress; F= Being planned; G = Being updated; H = Other status (explain below); I = No answer
2. Other forms of funding support have been mobilized for wetland issues	B

3.- Implementation progress since COP8 [Please include additional comments on the implementation of this action.]

During the latest years the Danish development agency DANIDA in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs has supported a number of projects focussed on the implementation of the Ramsar Convention.

In Tanzania funding has been provided since 2001 to develop a management plan for the first Ramsar site (Malargarazi). Furthermore, in the period 2004-2009 support has been given to sustainable management of wetlands in Tanzania, e.g. support to wetland management in the regions of Mbeya and Iringa and management plans for the Usangu and lake Natron Ramsar site. Technical assistance is given to the wetland unit in the Ministry for Nature Resources and Tourism with the aim to strengthen the collection of experiences on the management of wetlands, to disseminate the knowledge, to establish monitoring systems, and to develop a national strategy on management of wetlands.

In Malawi support has been given in the period 1999-2002 to develop a management plan for the first Ramsar site (Lake Chilwa) and to elaborate an overview of wetlands in the country.

In Thailand support has been given to elaborate an overview of the wetlands in the country and to a larger project 2001-2006 aiming at implementing the Ramsar Convention in selected wetlands.

In Malaysia support has been given to an integrated management plan for Tasek Bera, the first Ramsar site of Malaysia, and to ongoing management projects in the mangrove and swampy forest in Johor, Pahang and Sabah.

In Botswana a joint project with IUCN has been started in 2002 in the worlds largest Ramsar site (the Okavango Delta).

DANIDA has also supported projects on protection of wetlands and improved management of water resources in Cambodia (Lower Mekong Wetland Project) and Africa (Zambezi River Basin Action Plan in the southern part of Africa, and the Nile Basin Initiative). The last mentioned project is supported by DANIDA with 60 mill. Danish kr. (about 9 million EURO). The project has seven components, out of which one regional environmental component is placed in Sudan.

A number of activities under the agricultural sector (watershed management projects in e.g. Tanzania and India) include also support to improved management of wetlands, in the same way as coastal projects also do it in Mozambique, Vietnam and Cambodia.

DANCEA (Danish Cooperation on the Environment in the Arctic) in the Ministry of Environment has supported several projects in the Arctic, including a wetland project on developing management plans for Greenland Ramsar sites 2004 and 2005.

- increase cooperation and synergy among institutions with direct or indirect responsibility for wetland issues, especially those responsible for the management of water resources and for biodiversity and wetland conservation and management;
- promote enhanced cooperation, and where appropriate integrated approaches, among the national focal points of environment-related conventions, and consider establishing a coordinating committee to ensure that integrated approaches are taken;
- promote enhanced contact, and where appropriate close coordination, between the Ramsar Administrative Authority and national professional, technical, scientific and educational societies and agencies involved in wetland conservation or management, including those involved in social and cultural heritage issues; and
- provide appropriately trained staff, in adequate numbers, to enable these institutions to implement the Convention to full effect.
